Police Patrol Q&A

When will they come visit my home?

Police officers will not only visit on weekdays, but may also come on weekends. They will mainly visit during the day; they will not come during early mornings or late at night.

What will be asked during these visits?

Officers visiting your home will ask you questions regarding the following:

- Nationality, address, telephone number
- Concerning your family (name, date of birth, occupation, etc.)
- Confirmation of your emergency contact, etc.

Feel free to address any requests/concerns with officers.

What does the police do with the information? Is my personal information protected?

Information obtained will be recorded as Resident Information Annaibo, which will be strictly monitored and stored at a police facility. This information will never be accessed by a third party, so that you could answer without any worries or concerns.

I do not speak Japanese very well.

Officers on duty will ask you questions in easy, simple Japanese. If you are not able to communicate well, you may fill out the Resident Information in your native language instead.

What is the purpose of Resident Information?

The information obtained from police officers will be used in emergency situations, such as when you or your family get into an accident; your house is damaged by a major earthquake or fire; theft while you are away; and other emergency situations.
